MILES AND MEMORIES

The new JULIAN SAS album 'MILES AND MEMORIES' marks the return of our guitar hero to his favourite band line-up - the classic blues-rock trio - vocals/ guitar, bass and drums. In this case the emphasis is a bit more on the rock and a fraction less on the blues.

On Miles And Memories Julian Sas looks back lyrically on 30 years 'on the road'. 30 years of making music, travelling and making more music. An anniversary that will not be celebrated with the obvious career overview but with a smashing new album. And with a lot of gigs.

Julian Sas: Looking back on thirty years of my life on the road; jamming and making music, the title 'Miles And Memories' covers it perfectly! 'Electracoustic' (Julian's penultimate album) was ready and was well received. I had a new band and still a lot of musical and lyrical ideas that were looking for a way out. I started working on the new material with the band. And I can tell you; it felt good.....a new three-piece band, different influences, new boundaries to cross and really free while playing.....we returned to a classic blues-rock trio. Just like I started years ago. It felt like coming home. The energy, the rock & roll, the blues. A non-stoppable flow. Thirty years of being a non-commercial BLUES-ROCK band makes me proud! We were often at the crossroads, but never sold our souls. And we never will. We don't have to... we don't want to... the only thing that mattered and still matters is the music! Nothing else matters... so here it is.... 'Miles And Memories'

It is the end of 1994 when the young Julian Sas forms his own band and makes a name for himself for a short time as a must-see live act and as one of Europe's best blues guitarists. Now, 30 years later, Julian Sas is an established name and admired guitar hero with a large group of dedicated fans all over the world.
